To enter this course students must give satisfactory evidence of their church membership, of their license to preach or exhort, and also of their intention to prepare themselves for the regular work of the ministry.

Those who cannot take the full course may pursue such studies as will be adapted to their wants. The Bible and Discipline will be special studies the first year.

All who graduate in this course will be required to pass an examination on the common English branches. The degrees of Bachelor or Divinity will be conferred only on those who have received the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and take the full course, including the Greek and Hebrew Languages.

There will be opportunity in and around Nashville for students to exercise their gifts in preaching, in Sunday school and mission work, that will be of great practical advantage as a preparation for future labor.

PATRONIZING CONFERENCES.

The Lexington, East Tennessee and Tennessee Conferences have appointed visiting and examining committees. The great need of more thorough preparation of young men who are to enter the ministry is acknowledged by all. The brethren of these visiting committees and conferences will confer a great favor on the young men about to enter the ministry, and lasting benefit upon the church, by calling attention to the necessity of education to those who are to instruct the people in the doctrine of the Bible, and in the history and polity of the church, this can be done by preaching on the subject, and urging the youth of their congregations to avail themselves of the advantages, which have been placed within their reach.

For the purpose of aiding those who are engaged in the pastor's work, or who from any cause cannot attend school regularly, in securing theological training, this course of study and examination is prescribed. The examinations may take place during the last week of the first and second school terms, or during the first and second week in May of each year. The term examinations will include only the studies pursued during that term. The May examinations include the studies for the whole year, and will be specially designed for those who can only come to the examinations once a year. The examinations for the present will be held usually at the College, and will be mainly written. In addition to the regular theological studies, if any preachers wish to be examined in any other branches they will have the opportunity. Those who wish to take this course are requested to notify the President of their intention to take any or all of the examinations. The expenses will be only the regular rates of board for theological students, $6.25 per month.

The course of reading and books of reference may be the same as in the Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Certificates of examination will be given to those who reach the required standard, 70 per cent. Those completing this course and having passed a satisfactory examination on the common English branches will receive the certificate of graduation.

By request of many brethren in the ministry, who cannot come to the College for examination, arrangements will be made for written examinations, to be held at such time and place as may be appointed, and under such regulations as the circumstances seem to require.

Criminal Law, Moot Courts.

SECOND YEAR.

Evidence, Pleading at Law.
Equity Jurisprudence, Pleading and Practice in Courts of Equity.
Law of Real Property, Conveyancing, Moot Courts.

TEXT-BOOKS.

The text-books used will be Walker's American Law, Blackstone, Kent's Commentaries, Bishop or Parsons on Contracts, Wharton on Criminal Law, Stephens on Evidence, Stephens on Pleading, Adams' Equity.

Students will bring with them any and all text-books on the above subjects which they may have, as they may be useful as books of reference. Walker's American Law need not be purchased, as it is only an introductory work.

This school has started under very promising circumstances, it being the first and only school established for the education of colored attorneys in the whole South.

It is most advantageously located, at the capital of Tennessee, where the students may have access to the State Law Library, which is one of the most excellent and well selected in the country.

Besides this, they may observe the practice in every department of law by visiting the different courts in the city. This alone makes Nashville one of the most desirable sites in the whole South for such an institution.

We have here nearly all the courts known to American jurisprudence—from the Magistrate and Police Courts to the State Supreme Court, and the District and Circuit Courts of the United States.

Another advantage to the student who visits the courts to learn practice by actual observation is, that each department of law is practiced in a separate court, and before a separate judge—the Circuit Court, the Chancery Court, the Criminal Court and the Probate Court being distinct and separate bodies, each being presided over by its own Judge or Chancellor.

Some of these are in session during the whole period over which the year's study extends, and each of them sits at some time during the school year.

LAW LIBRARY.

The Faculty are now engaged in collecting books for the Law Library of the Institution, and they hope to have a full set of all the leading text-books on the various subjects embraced in the course of study, by the opening of the next school year.

All the text-books in the course can be bought in the city, and many of them can be obtained second-hand, at much reduced prices.

It has been the aim of the Faculty in selecting the course of study, to make it simple, concise, and yet thorough, in order to reduce the expense of text-books as much as possible. As it now stands, it embraces as much as a student can well master in a two-years' course, and, we think, contains all that is necessary for a preparation for the Bar.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission must pass at least a satisfactory examination on all the common English studies, and it will be well for them to take, if practicable, some more extensive course of study before beginning the study of law.

EXPENSES.

Tuition, per session of thirty-two weeks, $30. Other expenses about $2.25 per week. The tuition must be paid in advance, or one-half at the beginning of the school year, and the balance on or before the first Monday of March, in each session.

CALENDAR.

The session of 1884 and 1885 begins on Monday, October 6, 1884, and continues thirty-two weeks, closing May 20, 1885.

In order to graduate, students must be at least twenty years of age, must pass a written examination on the course of study, and on the history and doctrines of the Bible.

All letters of inquiry concerning this Department should be addressed to

G. W. HUBBARD, M.D.,
Dean of the Faculty.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The ninth regular session will commence Monday, October 6, 1884, and will end February 26, 1885.

LOCATION.

The Medical College is beautifully located on a spacious lot at the corner of Maple and Chestnut streets, two squares from the terminus of the South Nashville Street Railroad, and near the other College buildings.

HISTORY.

The Meharry Medical Department of Central Tennessee College was organized in 1876, for the purpose of furnishing the colored people of the South an opportunity of obtaining a medical education. In 1879, through the munificence of Rev. Samuel Meharry and his brothers, Rev. A. Meharry, D.D., and Hugh Meharry, Esq., the beautiful and commodious four-story brick building now occupied by the Meharry Medical Department, was erected. This school has conferred the degree of M.D. on forty-four young men, nearly all of whom are engaged in the successful practice of their profession. They have been kindly received by the white physicians, and their uniform testimony is that the colored physicians, sent out by this school, give evidence of very thorough and intelligent preparation for their work—the practice of medicine. This is the only thoroughly organized Medical School in the Mississippi Valley, south of the Ohio river, where colored persons can pursue this study, and when it is remembered that in this territory there are over four millions colored people, there is a great reason why this school should be rendered most efficient, by liberal endowment and thorough equipment for its important work.

BUILDING.

The building is constructed of brick, forty feet wide and sixty feet in length, and four stories in height, including the basement.

The ground floor is used as a laboratory for practical work in Chemistry; the second story for office, museum and dwelling departments; the third contains a lecture room sufficient in size to accommodate one hundred students, recitation room and cabinet of Materia Medica; the fourth story is fitted up for dormitories.

An additional building has been erected for practical demonstration in Anatomy.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The experience of the past eight years has clearly demonstrated that, but few students are capable of completing the medical studies now required by this College, in less than three years. All students are advised to attend three sessions, and take the following graded course of study; and in order to encourage such attendance, no additional charge will be made for tuition for the third session.

FIRST YEAR.

During the first year's attendance students will be required to recite daily in Anatomy, Chemistry and Physiology, and work two hours a week in the Chemical Laboratory. Instruction will also be given in Elementary Botany.

SECOND YEAR.

Daily recitations in Anatomy, Materia Medica, Theory and Practice of Medicine; Analytical and Medical Chemistry, with two hours' work a week in the Laboratory; Prescription Writing and Elements of Pharmacy.

THIRD YEAR.

Surgery, Gynæcology, Theory and Practice of Medicine, Histology and Microscopy.

Dissecting and attendance on lectures and clinics required during the entire course. Written examinations at the end of each month, and at the close of each session.

ADMISSION.

Applicants must be at least eighteen years of age, of good moral character, and pass a satisfactory examination in Arithmetic, Geography, Grammar, Reading, Writing and Spelling.

Graduates of other recognized colleges and normal schools will, on presenting their diplomas, be admitted without examination.

Some knowledge of Latin and Natural Science will prove to be of great advantage, and students are earnestly advised, if possible, to take an academic or collegiate course before commencing the study of medicine.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION.

1. To graduate, the candidate must be at least twenty-one years of age.
2. He must have studied medicine at least three years under some regular physician in good standing, including the time spent in this or some other medical school.
3. He must have attended some regular medical school at least two sessions of not less than twenty weeks each, the last of which must have been in this institution.
4. He must pass a satisfactory written examination in all of the branches laid down in this course, including the outline of Bible history and doctrine, and present an acceptable thesis on some medical subject.
5. He must have paid all college dues, including the graduation fee.

MUSEUM AND APPARATUS.

The College has a small but valuable collection of anatomical and obstetrical charts and models. During the past year a spectroscope and a solar microscope have been purchased and additions made to the chemical apparatus. We have also procured a good collection of about three hundred microscopic slides, a portion of which were prepared by Arthur C. Cole & Son, of Liverpool, Eng., and are designed to illustrate Histology and Pathology.

We have received from the Smithsonian Institution a collection of Marine Invertebrates.

The cabinet of Materia Medica contains the principal drugs and chemicals used in the practice of medicine.

The friends of this institution can assist in forwarding our work by furnishing means for supplying additional apparatus, which is greatly needed, and in donating objects of interest and value to the Museum.

LIBRARY.

The Library contains about three hundred bound volumes and twenty-six hundred unbound books and pamphlets, a greater portion of the latter being a gift from the late Dr. W. H. Mussey, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

We have lately received a valuable donation of medical books from J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia, and G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

TEXT BOOKS.

Anatomy, Gray; Physiology, Lowne; Chemistry, Steele; Materia Medica, Biddle; Surgery, Ashhurst; Theory and Practice, Hartshorne; Obstetrics, Leishman.

Books of Reference.—Theory and Practice, Flint; Physiology, Flint or Dalton; Surgery, Gross; Diseases of Women, Thomas; Diseases of Children, Meigs and Pepper; Dictionary, Dunglison.

FEES.

Tuition per session (in advance) ---------- $30.00
Materials for practical anatomy and chemistry used in the laboratory at cost.
Graduation fee ---------- $10.00

OTHER EXPENSES.

Board, room rent, fuel, lights and washing will cost from $8.50 to $10 per month.

FREE SCHOLARSHIPS.

The Jacob Harmon scholarship and the Jesse Meharry scholarship each furnishes free tuition to one needy and deserving student.

During the past year we received $500 from Dr. A. G. Haygood, general agent of the John F. Slater Fund for student aid and for apparatus.

Free tuition is offered to all who are preparing for foreign missionary work.

GENERAL INFORMATION.

COURSES OF STUDY.

COLLEGIATE.

This is the usual four years' course, and entitles the graduate to the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

SCIENTIFIC.

This includes all the studies of the preparatory course, and also the college studies, except the ancient languages, with such additional studies as may be prescribed by the Faculty. The degree of Bachelor of Science is conferred on those who complete this course.

ACADEMIC.

This is a good English course, with enough of the ancient languages to aid the student in professional studies.

NORMAL.

The rapidly increasing demand for well qualified teachers makes it important that the best facilities, for preparing to teach, be furnished to those who expect to engage in that work. In addition to the regular class work, lectures are given on teaching, on school management, government, and the relation of mental and moral science to the work of instruction. Students in this department have the privilege of work in the Model School, where, under the direction of an experienced teacher, they may have opportunities to hear recitations and become acquainted with the various methods of instructing and managing classes.

COMMON ENGLISH AND BUSINESS COURSES.

These are especially adapted to those who desire a thorough acquaintance with the common English, and such other special studies as will prepare for business life.

ADMISSION.

All applicants for admission into any department must give satisfactory evidence of good moral character, pass the required examination for the classes they are permitted to enter, and make the required payments.

No student will be admitted for less than one month.

Students from other schools must bring certificates of honorable dismission.

GRADUATION.

Students passing a satisfactory examination on any course of study, and giving evidence of acquaintance with the common English branches and outlines of Bible history and doctrine, will receive the usual degree or certificate of attainment.

EXAMINATION.

Written examinations will take place each month, and at the close of the term the classes will be examined in the studies pursued, and the students must secure the minimum standing of 65 per cent. to be entitled to retain their class standing.

Students who cannot attend school regularly may pursue such course of study as they, with the consent of the Faculty, may select, and having obtained the required 70 per cent. on the final examination, will receive the usual testimonials of graduation.

GOVERNMENT.

The order and arrangement of the family are observed as far as practicable.

The use of tobacco or intoxicating liquors is positively forbidden.

Students occupying rooms in the College buildings must keep them in order. They will be required to observe the hours for rising and retiring, and also hours for study and recitation. They will not be permitted to leave the grounds without permission. They will be responsible for order in their rooms, and will be required to pay for any damage done to furniture or buildings, beyond the necessary wear in careful usage. Regular and punctual attendance upon all college duties is a necessity for the best progress of the students. The object which should bring young men and women to this school is improvement in intellect, in manners, and in morals, and interfering with the accomplishment of this object in any way, is a violation ot the rules of the school. Parents or guardians are invited to communicate freely with the President or teachers, in reference to the conduct, progress and general welfare of students. It will be the effort of the authorities of the school to make the government such as to promote the highest welfare of all, and when the interests of the school demand the dismission of any student, it will he done.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

Religious exercises are held each day at the opening and closing of school. Students are required to attend these services; and also to attend Sunday-school and public worship, each Sabbath, at such places as are designated by parents or guardians. Those occupying rooms in the College buildings will attend services at the College, unless excused. While the institution is under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal church, and is supported by the Freedman's Aid Society of this church, it is the aim to teach those great principles of religion, which fit men to be truly useful, and make them wise unto salvation.

This is a Christian school. It is supported almost entirely by the contributions of Christian people. Its influence must be on the side of temperance, morality and religion. The Bible is a text-book.

LIBRARY AND APPARATUS.

The Library contains over fifteen hundred volumes. A number of friends have made generous donations during the past year to our library, and the empty shelves are still begging for more helps to the young men and young women, who come seeking knowledge from books of reference, which our friends can supply.

The geological cabinet contains about 400 specimens. Quite a handsome addition has been made by Rev. and Mrs. Buckner, of marine specimens from the Bermuda Islands.

We have a limited amount of philosophical apparatus, and as rapidly as we can secure the means, additions will be made to aid in the study of this branch of natural science.

SOCIETIES.

There are six societies connected with the College. The Young Men's Christian Association affords opportunities for weekly religious exercises. The Haven Missionary Society holds its meetings for the promotion of the missionary spirit, by imparting information concerning missionary work.

The Excelsior Literary and Junior Societies are composed of those students who may be elected on account of literary merit. The Library Congress meets regularly for discussion and discipline in parliamentary law.

The College Hill Temperance Society has held its meetings regularly for sixteen years, and has over a thousand members. The Sunday-school division of this society has over eight hundred members, and its pledge includes total abstinence from the use of tobacco in all its forms, as well as intoxicating drinks.

LECTURES.

Lectures have been delivered during the school year by all the professors and others, weekly, on subjects connected with the courses of study. These lectures are designed to enlarge the field of knowledge beyond the study of the text books. These lectures will be continued in the future.

BUILDINGS.

The college buildings consist of five substantial brick edifices, situated on the east side of Maple street, and a substantial frame building on the same street used for the Model School.

These buildings are pleasantly and healthfully situated, and afford facilities for school purposes and comfortable homes for students, with the exception that they are altogether too small for the number of students who are applying for admission. During the past school year many have been refused because there was no accommodations for them, either in the dormitories or dining room. The pressing need of the school is a new building for the young women, with dining room, music room, and arrangements for the sick, with accommodations for teaching all departments of domestic work. Additional buildings are an absolute necessity for the future growth and success of the school.

HELP NEEDED.

The colored people are gradually increasing in ability to help themselves. They are the laboring class of the South, and will be for years to come. A few have secured property and comfortable homes and a very small number have accumulated wealth. It will take generations for them to amass such wealth as will enable them to support and endow seminaries, colleges and universities. They should have these facilities for education. These schools, which have been organized for them in the South, should be as well equipped with buildings, furniture, library, apparatus and endowments as any other schools of the land. There are special reasons for this. It is yet asked, and honestly, by many: "Can the negro take in the higher studies of the University?" This can only be demonstrated by giving him a chance, equal in all respects to that of others. It cannot be expected that the people least able should do what others with the intelligence, wealth and controlling power have not been able to accomplish. The question of perpetuity and usefulness of these schools is the question of their endowment.

The poverty of the colored people prevents their regular attendance at school. A scholarship of a thousand dollars will enable one or more to remain in school during the time necessary to complete some course of study. In some cases twenty-five dollars will enable a young man or woman to remain in school the whole year.

One of the most urgent needs of the colored people is leaders, thoroughly educated, and acquainted with their wants, and who can have their confidence, and whose counsels they will need. These educated, disciplined men and women should be furnished at the earliest possible moment. They should be in the school-room, the pulpit, at the bar and by the bedside of the sick They are needed now. Educated women are needed most of all in the home. No people can rise above the condition of the mothers, who fashion the children so largely after themselves. Few are strong enough to throw off the influence of a home where ignorance, superstition and thriftlessness rule. The young men and women are asking for help. Money for this purpose can be sent through Rev. R. S. Rust, D D., Corresponding Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society, or to the President at Nashville. Any one who wishes may be put in communication with the student he is aiding, or receive reports or his standing or progress.

INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT.

During the year a practical carpenter has been employed to give instruction in the use of tools. There have been twenty-four young men enrolled in this department. They have made considerable advancement under the direction of the instructor. They have made boxes, stands, tables, book cases, and one wardrobe; they have built one small building and a two story shop, 24 x 50 feet. They have done this and retained their standing in their classes with those students who have spent no time in mechanical pursuits.

The printing office has two small presses and a fair amount of type. The students have, under the direction of the instructor, printed programmes, bill and letter headings, envelopes, cards, and three numbers of the College Record, a monthly paper of eight pages, and have acquired considerable proficiency in handling the type.

The young women have had instruction in sewing, mending and darning, and other styles of needle work, as well as some kinds of fancy work. They have had lectures on nursing and the preparation of food for the sick, and what to do in case of accidents by poisons, cutting arteries, drowning, burning, bites of poisonous reptiles and insects, and on the general sanitary laws of homes, which all housekeepers ought to know and observe. This department will be developed so as to include other branches of mechanical industry and domestic economy, as means are furnished and as circumstances seem to demand.

THE WORK.

The school closes its seventeenth year under favorable circumstances. The enrollment in the College has been 360, and in the Preparatory School at Mason 115—total, 475. A large proportion of the students have been teachers, and are at school preparing for better work among their people. Others are getting ready to begin to teach. Most of these have charge of Sunday-schools in connection with their day schools, thus aiding in the religious instruction of the communities where they labor. Hundreds of students educated here are working among their people as advocates of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors and tobacco. Most of them are professed Christians, and infuse the Christian spirit into their work. Some are successful preachers in the different branches of Methodism, as well as in other denominations. Forty-four have been graduated in the Medical Department, and most of them are now practicticing successfully. There are more than five millions of colored people in the South ,who are asking for more competent teachers, better educated lawyers, doctors and preachers, who can teach the people; better educated farmers and mechanics, and more enlightened wives and mothers to elevate the home-life of the entire people. It is the aim of this school to aid in the work, and it is for the Church, by liberal contributions annually, and by endowing these schools, to supply these wants.

THE CENTENNIAL YEAR.

The Methodist Episcopal Church will celebrate this year the centennial of her organization. It is proposed to make the celebration an occasion for increasing the facilities of the educational institutions of the Church, by securing donations to colleges and universities under its patronage, which will place these schools on a sure foundation in reference to support. The Central Tennessee College has just finished the eighteenth year of its history, It was, for the first and second year of its history, in the old Gun Factory. In 1868 that property was returned to private parties, and a house and lot was purchased and the school moved to it. The same year two other buildings were erected, and it was thought the buildings would be sufficient for a long time. In a very short time these buildings were crowded and another and larger building was erected. This was opened in 1876, and it was supposed that many years would pass before another building would be needed, but during the present school year every room has been occupied, and some rooms had more occupants than could be comfortably accomodated. The demand for higher education is constantly increasing, and the future requirements for accomodating a larger attendance can only be met by increase of suitable buildings. It is the duty of the Church to aid the state and nation, in providing means, so that all the Freedmen and their immediate descendants can secure a good common English education. There is a pressing need at once for a building large enough to accommodate one hundred young women with dormtories, with suitable arrangements for dining room, kitchen, laundry and other purposes. The past year has tested the capacity of our buildings to the fullest extent, and when our rooms were overcrowded other applicants were refused for lack of room to receive them in the boarding department.

Nashville has become the center of educational facilities of the South, and the demand for enlarged accommodation should be provided, for the increasing numbers who will seek the advantages which such an educational center must afford. During this centennial year will be an excellent time for our friends to come to our aid with their thank offerings for the Divine blessings showered upon the Church, in all its departments of work, and on no other branch of church benevolence has this approval seemed to rest with greater favor, than on her educational institutions, where yearly scores and even hundreds of young people, while seeking intellectual light, are brought into the brighter light of gospel experience.

There is special need for the theological training of the future ministers of the colored people, and we invite the special attention of our friends to this department. As a beginning of our centennial gifts, Rev. H. W. Key has secured to the college five hundred dollars, to found a scholarship, to be known by the name of the donor. This will aid some needy student to remain in school regularly, till some course of study is completed. Others might found other scholarships, or even professorships, greatly to the advantage of the college and to the people, who are struggling into a better financial, social, intellectual and religious life.
